

The Midway Museum: Everyday History

Name _____ Grade _____ Date _____

Congratulations! You are a historian. History is made every day, and today is not an exception. Write a letter to your future self about your visit today. Tell the story about what you saw, learned, and experienced at the Midway Museum. But remember, every detail matters, even if you feel it does not; it could fit into a bigger picture, and everyone's interpretation is different.

An excellent place to start is at the beginning of your day. How did you get here? Was there anything you wanted to learn about during your visit? What was your favorite part of the tour? Did you like visiting? Why or why not?
